TAFMO announces new relationship with National Australia Bank

Melbourne, 25 August 2006

TAFMO AUSTRALIA Pty Limited announces that it has secured an agreement with National Australia Bank (NAB) to provide TAFMO's value-added products and services to NAB's merchant customers.

This will significantly extend TAFMO's reach into the Australian banking sector and give NAB the extensive range of value-added products that TAFMO technology provides. As NAB rolls out new EFTPOS terminals, TAFMO will be the exclusive provider of a range of product categories, including ticketing, tolling and telecommunications products. More than 80,000 EFTPOS terminals are expected to be deployed to current and new merchants within two years.

TAFMO Managing Director, Philip Course said, "We are delighted to be able to support NAB in providing a broader range of products and services to their merchants. This arrangement ensures that NAB will have access to new products as TAFMO makes them available, and also provides a platform for market-specific offerings through NAB's EFTPOS terminals."

Andrew Coghill, NAB Executive Manager, Product Development for Business Products and Services, said, "NAB has begun its progressive launch of new NAB-branded EFTPOS terminals to increase differentiation and expand the range of services supplied to merchants."

TAFMO has started the integration work necessary to deploy TAFMO services to NAB terminals, and NAB will begin rolling out TAFMO services to their merchants before the end of 2006.
